CHAPTER 1

NOVA SCOTIA 40TH GENERAL PROVINCIAL ELECTION COMPARATIVE STATISTICS & TRENDS

1 Introduction

Summary of Results

On April 30th, 2017, at the request of Premier Stephen McNeil, the Lieutenant Governor, the Honourable J.J. Grant CMM, ONS, CD (Ret'd), dissolved the Legislative Assembly. An Order in Council directed the Chief Electoral Officer to issue the writs of election to all electoral districts. The date chosen for the 40th Provincial General Election was Tuesday, May 30th, 2017.

At the time of dissolution there were 51 electoral districts in Nova Scotia. Standings in the House of Assembly included: 34 members of the Nova Scotia Liberal Party (NSLP), 10 members of the Progressive Conservative Association of Nova Scotia (PC), 5 members of the Nova Scotia New Democratic Party (NSNDP), one independent member and one vacancy.

In the May 30th, 2017 Provincial General Election, 203 candidates stood for election: 51 from each of the NSLP, the NSNDP, the PC, 32 representing the Green Party of Nova Scotia (GPNS), 15 from the Atlantica Party (Atlantica) and 3 independent candidates.

The return of the writs of election revealed that 27 candidates of the NSLP, 17 of the PC and 7 of the NSNDP were elected as members to the House of Assembly.

The NSLP received 158,383 votes (39.6%) of the valid votes cast, while the PC received 143,354 (35.7%), the NSNDP 86,299 (21.5%), the GPNS 11,127 (3.0%), Atlantica 1,632 (0.4%), and Independent candidates 447 (.1%).

At close of the polls on election day, there were 756,113 electors registered to vote. In total, 403,366 (53.4%) of all registered electors voted compared to 58.2% in 2013, 57.9% in 2009, and 59.9% in 2006.

A total of 2,112 polling stations were available in 889 different locations across the province; 74 of those stations were used for advance voting; 1,833 polling stations serviced election day voters and 87 mobile polls served electors who lived in residential centres. More than 6,000 Nova Scotians were hired to deliver the vote during the election period.

To enhance access to early voting, electors could vote at any returning office, advance poll or community poll offered in the province as opposed to being assigned to vote at one poll, as was done previously. The 40th Provincial General Election was the first general election to have advance polls run for seven days instead of two. Community polls were used as an early voting opportunity to cut down travel time for electors in districts with large thinly populated geographic areas. Other early voting opportunities included the mail-in write-in-ballot process, and write-in ballot teams who visited electors by appointment in their homes, hospitals and long term care facilities so those who could not visit a polling location had the opportunity to vote.

2 Election Results

2.1 Elected Candidates by Registered Party

The following Table 1 lists the candidates elected to the House of Assembly at the May 30th, 2017 Provincial General Election for each electoral district, and provides the registered party, the count and percentage of the votes received. It also notes the incumbent at the time of the election.

3.3 Returning Officers

Since the Provincial General Election of 2009, prospective returning officers have participated in a merit based competition leading to the appointment of 51 returning officers by the Chief Electoral Officer. In Table 5, each returning officer is listed and their appointment dates indicated. Prior to appointments by the Chief Electoral Officer beginning in 2009, returning officers were appointed by Order in Council. Returning officers serve in each electoral district, and returning officers at large are also appointed to work on projects.

5 Register of Electors

Since the adoption of a Register of Electors in 2003, Elections Nova Scotia has worked to increase elector registration and enhance the reliability of the information. Prior to 2003, each list of electors was compiled through province-wide, door-to-door enumeration. Since then, Elections Nova Scotia has maintained the Register of Electors through continuous exchange of information with other provincial and federal public bodies, specifically: Vital Statistics, Health Department, Registry of Motor Vehicles, Elections Canada, and through the use of Register of Elector information by municipalities in their elections.

5.1 Register of Electors Updates – Mail-out to 18 year olds

One way to register new electors in Nova Scotia is by engaging youth as soon as they are qualified. Since 2016, Elections Nova Scotia has received the names, dates of birth and addresses of 16 and 17 year olds who are registered in the school system. In order to be added to the Register of Electors, these youths must become 18 years old, confirm their eligibility (i.e., citizenship) and consent to being added to the Register.

In the lead-up to the 40th Provincial General Election, during the first two weeks of April 2017, letters were sent to 11,171 young adults who had recently turned eighteen asking them to confirm their information and eligibility and consent to be added to the list of electors. By election day May 30th, a total of 2,440 (approximately 22%) responses were received via mail, telephone, or email and added as new electors to the list of electors. Of the newly added youth, 1,718 (70%) voted during the election.

5.2 Lists of Electors through the election period

At the start of the election, 750,270 registered electors were on the provincial list of electors. Revision and additions to the list of electors starts almost immediately through targeted elector enumeration and direct contact through the returning office. A Preliminary List of Electors including those changes was generated for each electoral district by the end of Day 21, May 9th. The day before the close of nominations each nominated candidate and registered party was offered a copy of the relevant list. The net increase in electors on the preliminary list was approximately 300 electors across the province. Revision continued through the election at the returning offices and poll locations of early voting opportunities and on election day. The Final List of Electors was generated after election day and included all electors that were added or revised on election day. For the 2017 General Election, there was a net of 5,843 electors added to the initial provincial list as opposed to more than 10,000 electors added in each of the previous two general elections.

Table 7: Comparative Registered Electors Count on Preliminary and Final List

List of Electors	Number of Active Electors
	2006	2009	2013	2017
Initial List of Electors at the drop of the writ		704,555	709,449	750,270
Preliminary List of Electors	647,638	703,386	710,715	750,573
Final List of Electors including electors added on election day polls	678,042	714,675	720,077	756,113
Net change in number of electors from the Initial List of Electors *	30,404	10,120	10,628	5,843

* For 2006, the net number of electors is the difference between the number of electors on the Final and Preliminary List of Electors

Revision Activities by Electoral District

Table 8 below explores the number of electors that had their information revised or have been added to the list of electors during the election period. It details some of the types of revisions including changes to the elector’s name and date of birth (11,245 transactions), their residential civic address (24,868 transactions) because of them moving into the electoral district or moving to a new residence within their district, updates of their mailing address (8,330 transactions), and electors removed from the list (7,350 transactions) due to death, electors who have moved, or electors who were previously on the Register who re-registered (2,816 transactions).

In total, 50,355 electors, or 7% of registered electors, had some type of information revision on their record, while 11,704 (2% of the registered electors) were added. The electoral districts of Antigonish and Kings West had the most revisions with 16% and 13% of their registered electors having their information updated, respectively.

* The number of revised electors indicates the number of electors that had one or more types of revision on their information.
  The number of new electors that were added to the List of Electors throughout the election period. In addition, these electors may also have been revised and included in the number per type of revision.

Enumeration Activities by Electoral District

In addition to enumerating 171 residential centres across the province, targeted enumeration activities took place in 29 electoral districts in the first week of the election period. Across the province, 179 people were employed as enumerators. Table 9 reflects targeted enumeration in the 29 electoral districts only.

A total of 13,056 addresses were enumerated resulting in the new registration of 822 electors. Personal and address information was revised for 2,036 electors.

Of the 2,858 electors who were added or updated through the enumeration activity 964 (34%) voted in the election.

5.3 Population Coverage

By Age

Table 10 details the distribution of the registered electors by age group and the percentage on the register of electors. During the 2017 Provincial General Election, the register of electors included 99.5% of the estimated population of Nova Scotians who are eighteen years of age or older.

Statistics Canada population estimate is based on May 2016 census data. Register coverage is defined as the percentage of eligible electors on the register of electors in May 2017 using the May 2016 population estimate. The coverage on the register of electors in 2017 appears above 100% in six of seven age groups; an anomaly due in part to a one year difference between the census and the date of the general election. Statistics Canada population estimates also includes ineligible electors, that is, non-citizens, and electors who have not lived in the province for six months.

The register of electors will include a small number of duplicate records where two versions of the information captured for an elector. For example, an elector may be duplicated if there is a difference in the names entered on a Nova Scotia driver's license and in filing taxes where the elector is added to the Elections Canada list of electors that has not been identified by Elections Nova Scotia's register software. The Register will include people who have moved out of province or have deceased and not yet been identified to be removed from the list.

In contrast to the other age groups, the 18-24 age group remains underrepresented in the register of electors, with 71.6% coverage in 2017. Coverage for this age group has increased over the 57.4% coverage reported following the 2013 Provincial General Election.

 Coverage calculations are approximate as population statistics and number of electors in each age group are one year apart.

By Gender

There are more women than men over 18 years of age in Nova Scotia. Almost all of them are captured in the Register of Electors. The following Table 11 shows the list coverage of the population by gender.

The Elections Act currently requires that an elector's sex be included in the register of electors. The category is marked as unknown in cases where a person has not indicated gender at the time of addition, or if data from other federal or provincial sources (Vital Statistics, Health Department, Registry of Motor Vehicles, Elections Canada) did not include that information.

6.1 Size of Electoral Districts

The current 51 electoral districts were legislated in the House of Assembly Act in 2012 and first came into effect in the 39th Provincial General Election. The largest electoral district by geographic area is Guysborough-Eastern Shore-Tracadie (5,267 km²) followed by Queens-Shelburne (4,518 km²) and Inverness (3,826 km²). Table 14 sorts the electoral districts by geographic size, from largest to smallest, and shows the number of polling divisions in each electoral district and the number of electors per square kilometre.

The 51 districts are currently divided into 1,969 polling divisions with Annapolis having the largest number of polling divisions (53), and Preston-Dartmouth having the least, (26). There is a wide variance in the geographic size of electoral districts, from 5,267 square kilometres and two people per square kilometre in Guysborough-Eastern Shore-Tracadie to 5 square kilometres and 3,517 people per square kilometre in Halifax Chebucto.

6.2 Number and Type of Opportunity

For the 2017 Provincial General Election, a total of 889 voting locations were used. Those housed 2,112 polling station teams that were established to process advance and election day voters. In 2013, five of the largest electoral districts geographically had a secondary returning office, while in 2017 three of the five largest electoral districts geographically had an extended community poll replacing the secondary office and nine electoral districts had two polling station teams conducting the returning office continuous poll. The reduction in the number of polling stations in the advance polls from 2013 to 2017 was facilitated in three ways: the increase in advance voting days to seven days in 2017 from two days in 2013, the fact that electors could to vote in any advance poll offered throughout the province versus only their assigned advance poll in 2013 and the advising of each elector through their Voter Information Card (VIC) of their four nearest early voting locations, based on the driving distance and approximate driving time from the elector's residence, including returning offices and community polls.

Several types of buildings were used to accommodate the advance and election day polls: assembly halls, fire station halls, schools and church halls were the most prevalent. Of the 889 buildings used as voting locations, 791 or 89% were wheelchair accessible.

6.3 Opportunity by Electoral District

Table 17 details the voting locations distribution by electoral district. For the first time in a Nova Scotia Provincial Election, advance polls ran for seven days. Elections Nova Scotia's goal is to have all voting locations wheelchair accessible. However, the short-notice leasing of buildings due to the inability to pre-schedule rentals before a writ is issued and the fact that some communities do not have an accessible location to house a poll within a reasonable drive time (see 6.5 Access to the Poll below), means we cannot ensure wheelchair accessible locations despite best efforts. Thirty-five of the 51 electoral districts achieved wheelchair accessibility in 100% of the voting locations.

* For the General Election 2013:

- Locations: includes returning offices, advance, election day and mobile polls
- Polling Stations: includes polling stations at returning offices for continuous poll and write-in ballot poll, advance polls, election day and mobile polling stations.

 For the General Election 2017:

- Locations: includes returning offices, community, advance, election day, hospitals and mobile polls.
- Polling Stations: includes polling stations at returning offices for continuous poll and write-in ballot poll, election day, community, and advance polls as well as mobile and hospital write-in ballot polling stations.

6.4 Opportunity by Day

The number of opportunities available to vote throughout the election period have increased from 2013 to 2017. Advance polls expanded from two days to seven days, and the returning office continuous poll was also extended with voting possible every day through the election period including election day (except Sundays). Community polls were also added in 2017, covering multiple locations over two weeks in the election calendar. As the timing of the election was outside of the main post-secondary schedule, there were no campus polls held in 2017, though schools, college and university poll locations were used to provide electors in the proximity of the campus with voting opportunities.

6.5 Access to the Poll

Ensuring everyone has reasonable access to voting while containing costs are major factors in determining locations for early voting opportunities and election day polls.

Elections Nova Scotia has created two standard baselines for measuring reasonable access to polls. These standards are based on travel time baselines for electors:

- Electors should be able to reach an advance poll within 25 minutes – seven days of advance poll voting situated in central communities. These communities are places where most electors either live or will travel to shop or do banking, etc., within that week of advance voting.
- Community polls, two days in duration, were held in 16 electoral districts, and extended community polls were held for 15 days of early voting in three districts (Cape Breton–Richmond, Guysborough–Eastern Shore–Tracadie and Queens–Shelburne). Community polls are not legislated in the same way as advance polls, and the Chief Electoral Officer has the discretion to conduct a community continuous poll to ensure convenient access to polls for electors who may otherwise fall outside the 25 minute standard.
- Electors should be able to reach their election day polls within 15 minutes.

Voting locations that meet these standards are selected by returning officers whenever possible. Using improved GIS technology, we are able to accurately determine the number and percentage of electors who meet the time travel baselines.

Early Voting

Based on routing analysis, locations for returning offices, advance polls and community polls were selected such that their reach was optimized for the maximum number of electors and minimized the driving time to reach an early voting location. Our calculations showed that 98% (around 735,500 electors) of all registered electors could reach such a location within a 25 minute drive and 63% (around 467,000 electors) could drive less than 5 minutes to cast their vote.

Table 19: Driving Time to Early Voting Locations

Drive Time (minutes)	Percent of Electors Able to Reach an Early Voting Location
5	63%
10	83%
15	92%
20	96%
25	98%

Table 20 shows the number and percentage of electors in each electoral district that could reach an early voting location within 5, 10, 15, 20, and 25 minutes. In twenty (20) electoral districts all electors could reach an early voting poll locations within 15 minutes. For example, all electors in Dartmouth North, Dartmouth South, Fairview-Clayton Park, Halifax Armdale, Halifax Chebucto, Halifax Citadel-Sable Island, and Halifax Needham were only 5 minutes away from an early voting location. Throughout the province, 98% of all electors were within a maximum drive time range of 25 minutes to an early voting location. Two of the 51 electoral districts had more than ten percent of the electors in the district with a drive time outside the 25 minute standard: Guysborough-Eastern Shore-Tracadie (12.8%) and Clare-Digby (10.5%).

* Total number of electors reflect the number of electors on the List of Electors as of April 25, 2017

The 2017 Provincial General Election marked the first time in Canada that driving time analysis pointing out the nearest locations to vote was provided to electors as a convenience measure. Voter Information Cards (VIC) listed each of the four nearest early voting locations, based on the driving distance and approximate driving time between the location of an elector’s residence and the voting location. Though most of the electors in the province would have received the VIC by direct mail, this driving distance information was also available through a web-based tool that could provide a person’s nearest voting locations after entering either their current or home address. With any location-enabled device the web tool could be used to determine the nearest early voting locations from either a residence, or from the current location. The extension to the information in the VIC and development of the tool was used to communicate and to facilitate the “vote anywhere” opportunities in early voting.

Nearest Returning Office or Advance Poll Location	Distance (Km)	Drive Time (minutes)
	Median	Median
First Nearest	2.9	4
Second Nearest	9.6	10
Third Nearest	15.2	14
Fourth Nearest	18.5	17

The use of the drive time analysis also revealed that half of all registered electors had an early voting opportunity less than three kilometres or a four-minute drive away. The nearest early voting location for approximately two of every three electors was a returning office that was open six days a week through the entire election period. The nearest location for about one in three electors was an advance poll that was open Saturday through Saturday (excluding Sunday) before election day.

Election Day Voting

Unlike the flexible early voting opportunities which allowed for voting anywhere in the province, electors are assigned a single voting location on election day. The goal was to make available voting locations within a fifteen-minute drive for every elector. Catchment area maps for the voting locations were developed to show which poll divisions were assigned to each election day voting location chosen by returning officers. These maps were reviewed and discussed with representatives of local electoral district associations well in advance of the writs being issued. Modifications were made where merited based on the feedback provided.

Table 21 indicates that 85% of Nova Scotia electors could have driven 5 minutes to their election day voting location and around 99% could have driven to their poll within 15 minutes.

Table 22 shows for each district the number of electors who could have driven 5, 10, or 15 minutes to their assigned election day voting location. Almost all electors (99%-100% of electors) in forty out of the fifty-one districts could reach an election day voting location within 15 minutes. All electors living in 11 electoral districts within the Halifax metro area, Pictou Centre, Glace Bay, and Sydney-Whitney Pier could reach a voting location within 5 minutes. Nine rural electoral districts had from 2%-6% of the electors who would have had to drive in excess of 15 minutes to reach an election day voting location.

7 Voting Participation

Before 1981, the only voting opportunities were advance and ordinary polls. In 1981, the Elections Act was amended to add another early voting opportunity, the Special Poll, in an attempt to increase voter turnout by making voting more convenient for the elector. In the 2003 general election, voting by Write-in Ballot was introduced after further amendments to the Elections Act in 2001.

For the 2017 Provincial General Election, Nova Scotians had a variety of early voting opportunities. These included, voting at a returning office, voting at an advance poll, community polls, write-in ballots, and mobile polling stations.

Electors could vote at any returning office, advance poll or community poll in the province. Voting was available:

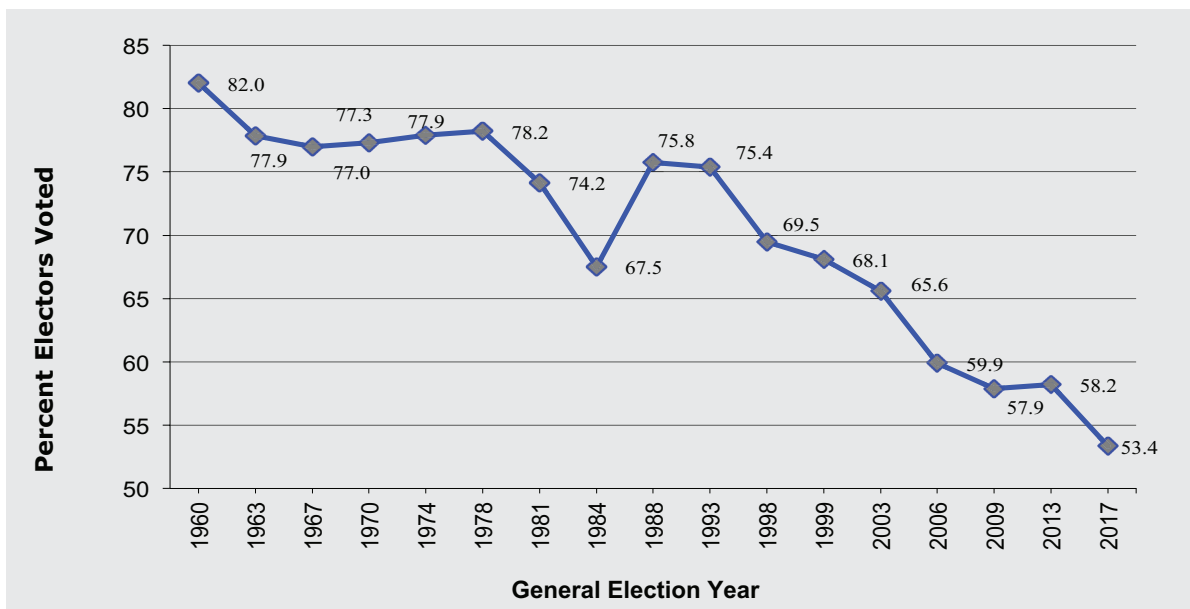

- every day during the writ period, except Sundays at the returning office
- From Saturday through Saturday (except Sunday) the week before election day at the advance poll
- For two days, Friday and Saturday before election day, at most community polls
- At three extended community polls, voting was offered from Friday, 18 days before election day through the Saturday before election day except Sundays

Elections Nova Scotia will expand analysis on voter participation in Volume II: Report on the Conduct of the May 30, 2017 Provincial General Election and Recommendations for Legislative Change.

7.1 Historical Voter Turnout

Increased early voting opportunities adopted in recent decades have added convenience to electors but has not resulted in higher percentages of voter turnout. In fact, as in many other jurisdictions in Canada, there has been an almost continual decline in turnout among voters since the 1980s. In the 2017 provincial general election, despite an increase in early voting opportunities, the voter turnout declined to 53.4%.

7.2 Distribution of Voters by Age Group

Fewer people cast a ballot in 2017 (403,365 votes) than 2013 (419,091 votes). Table 23 shows that among those who voted, the percentage of youngest and oldest age groups increased by about 0.6% in both the 18-24 year age group and those 65 years and older. The share of voters in the 35-44 year age group declined by 0.8% compared to 2013. The greatest decline was in the 45-54 age group, a drop of 2.9% between 2013 and 2017.

Elections Nova Scotia maintains a Register of Electors which captures most, though not all, eligible electors. The highest level of participation was in the 65-74 age group with decreasing participation for each ten year age cohort decrease in age. The lowest participation appears in the 18-24 year age group. As discussed in 5.1, the letter sent to youth resulted in the addition of 2,440 names to the register of electors, and 70% of those additions cast a ballot in this election.

Overall, the percentage of voters casting a ballot before election day increased most significantly in the use of returning office polls which in 2013 represented 9.6% of all ballots and in 2017 grew to 22.1%, as shown in Table 25. The increase in voting at the returning office is one of the factors in the reduction in the use of write-in ballots from 2.4% to 1.1% and advance and community polls, from 12.4% to 8.0%, even though advance polls ran seven days in 2017 and only two days in 2013.

* The percentage of voters in the general election of 2013 has been corrected to reflect the percentage of voters by age group and voting opportunity.

 Total percent for the general election of 2017 voting opportunities refers to percentage of in-district and out-of-district electors casting their vote at that voting opportunity.

7.3 Distribution of Voters by Gender

The participation rate of female voters was slightly higher than male voters in the 2017 Provincial General Election, as shown in Table 26. There are also more females than males over 18 years old in Nova Scotia, and there were about 33,000 more women than men who cast a ballot.

The Elections Act currently requires one's sex (gender) to be included in the register of electors, however this is marked as unknown in cases where a person's gender was not indicated at the time of addition, or if data from other federal or provincial sources (Vital Statistics, Health Department, Registry of Motor Vehicles, Elections Canada) did not include that information.

7.4 Distribution of Voters by Day

The first two votes cast in the 2017 Provincial General Election were submitted by write-in ballot within hours of the election call. Table 27 shows the daily vote count by voting opportunity used. The uptake on returning office polls as an early voting opportunity increased throughout the election period. The number of votes cast at returning offices exceeds the number of votes cast at advance polls on every one of the seven advance poll days because the Voter Information Card (VIC) informed electors of their four nearest early voting locations, based on the driving distance and approximate driving time from the elector's residence, included returning offices.

* The difference in the number of electors who voted and the official count of the total votes cast (403,365) is attributed to write-in ballots not returned by the voter and to out-of-district ballots not returned to ENS HQ for counting.

 For the first time, electors who showed up at the local returning office voted instead of being redirected to their election day voting location.

Early voting opportunities were available throughout the election period at advance and community polls, returning office continuous polls and by write-in ballot. Figure 6 shows that most ballots are cast in the final days of the election period, with the returning office poll receiving more voters than other early voting opportunities during every day before election day.

7.5 Historical Participation by Opportunity

Table 28 and the following Figure 7 provide a historical trend, ranging from 1960 to 2017, of the voting opportunities and their uptake by voters during provincial general elections.

The number of electors on the list of electors has nearly doubled since 1960, but the percentage of people casting a ballot has declined in recent decades. Election day voting peaked in 1993 with over 464,000 votes cast, declining with each general election through to 2017 where 284,823 (70.6%) ballots were cast on election day. Since 1960 the percentage of voters voting on election day has declined from 98.6% in 1960 to 70.6% in 2017 including voters casting their vote on election day at elections day polls, returning office polls and write ballot polls. The number of people choosing to vote before election day has steadily increased, from 4,545 (1.4%) in 1960 to a new high of 118,542 (29.4% of the total votes cast) before election day in 2017.

1 Advance polls include the voters casting their vote in their district at Special Polls and Advance polls for the election events of 1981 to 2009, and Advance Polls and Community Polls for 2017 general election

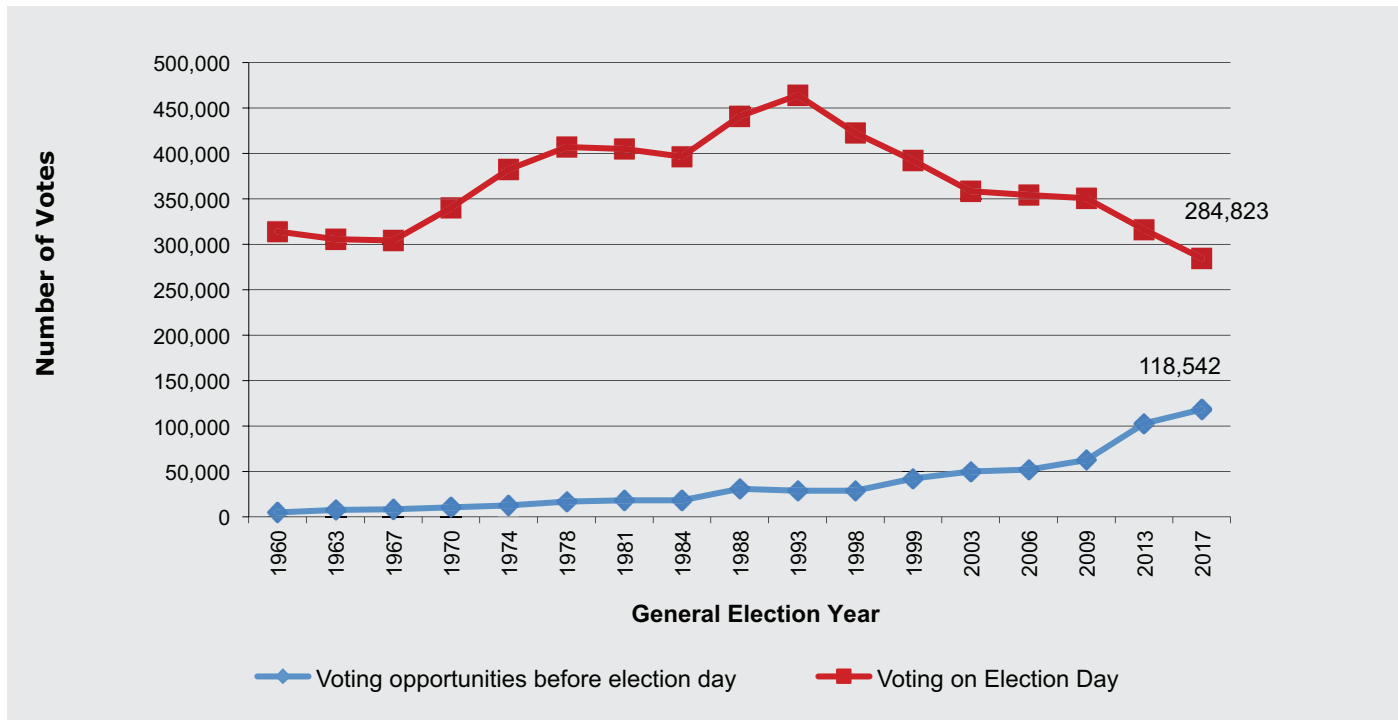

2 Continuous polls out-of-district includes the voters casting their vote out of their district at a Returning Office poll, Advance poll or Community Poll at the 2017 general election

3 Returning Office Continuous polls includes the voters casting their vote at the Returning Office poll of their district all through election day

4 Write-in Ballot poll at the 2017 general election includes voters applying for and casting their vote by write-in ballot in their district (0.9%) or out of their district (0.2%) at the write-in ballot polls held at the returning offices, hospitals or by mail.

Figure 7 provides a graphic trend of voter turnout before election day and on election day since 1960. While turnout has increased consistently for early voting opportunities the number of votes cast on election day has continued to decline in each provincial general election since 1998.

7.6 Out of District Participation

Electors could vote for their local candidate by casting their ballot at any poll in the district they live in or at any early voting location in the province up to the end of the third day before election day (May 27th). A total of 125,724 voted early at a returning office, advance poll, community poll or write-in ballot poll. In total, 22,646 electors or 18% of the early voters and 6% of all voters, voted outside their home electoral district throughout Nova Scotia.

Of the 22,646 electors who voted out of district, 15,085 electors voted at another returning office other than their own, 6,352 electors at an advance poll, 984 electors at a write-in ballot poll, and 225 electors at a community poll location.

The out-of-district applications for write-in ballot voting came from members of the Canadian Forces, incarcerated individuals, or people who were temporarily out of Nova Scotia during the election period were processed by a team at the Elections Nova Scotia head office. In addition, hospital poll teams and write-in ballot coordinator teams processed the applications of out-of-district electors in hospital or through visits to elector’s residences.

Some early voting locations received a significant number of ballots cast by electors who resided outside the electoral district of the location. Seven of the 51 electoral districts received more than a thousand ballots from electors who travelled from another electoral district. For example, Clayton Park West received 4,911 early votes in total; and more than a third of those, that is 1,686 (34.3%), were ballots for another electoral district, as shown in Table 29.

In contrast, Table 30 shows that 225 voters cast their ballots for candidates in the electoral district of Clayton Park West from one of the other 50 electoral districts in the province.

Early voting locations in the following ten electoral districts received at least one-third of their early votes from out-of-district voters: Sydney-Whitney Pier, Sydney River-Mira-Louisbourg, Clayton Park West, Sackville-Beaver Bank, Pictou Centre, Halifax Armdale, Dartmouth East, Fairview-Clayton Park, and Halifax Citadel-Sable Island.

While the Clayton Park West district received the highest number of out-of-district voters, Halifax Citadel-Sable Island had the highest percentage of out-of-district voters, with 38.9% (1,280) of all early voters casting their ballot for another district. The Cole Harbour-Eastern Passage electoral district processed the lowest number of out-of-district votes, 12 votes or 0.8% of all ballots received in the electoral district before election day.

Table 30 below expands by district where those 22,646 out-of-district electors chose to cast their vote. Just as electors may work or shop outside of their home electoral district, electors often chose to vote in an adjacent electoral district. For example, it shows that the electoral districts of Halifax Chebucto, Dartmouth South, and Fairview-Clayton Park had the highest number of electors (1,967, 1,450 and 1,352 electors respectively) who chose to cast their vote outside of their home district. In Halifax Chebucto, more than 70% of the 1,967 early voters cast their ballot at a voting location in one of the adjacent electoral districts of Halifax Needham (698 votes) or Halifax Armdale (691 votes). Table 30 shows that 1,967 out-of-district votes were cast for a Halifax Chebucto candidate in one of 28 other electoral districts. Table 30 shows the total number of out-of-district votes per electoral district, and lists each district from where the out-of-district votes were cast.

7.7 Hospital Write-in Ballot Polls

Not everyone was able to make it to a voting location during the election period, and write-in ballots were requested by people temporarily working or travelling out of their home district or out of province. People who are hospitalized during an election period were offered the opportunity to vote by write-in ballot. Hospital polls were set up in most major hospitals in Nova Scotia. In the case where one hospital could not accommodate a hospital poll, a write-in ballot coordinator team was utilized to help patients exercise their right to vote.

Table 31: Hospital Write-in Ballot Polls

Electoral District	Hospital Poll Location	Total No. of Voters	In-District Voters	Out-of-District Voters
24 - Halifax Armdale	ENS Head Quarters *	290	0	290

37 - Lunenburg West	South Shore Regional Hospital, Bridgewater	36	22	14

* All out-of-district applications for write-in ballots were processed at the Elections Nova Scotia head office

 Due to logistical circumstances this location could not accommodate a hospital poll. Instead, the poll was conducted by write-in-ballot coordinator teams.
