Nova Scotia 41st Provincial General Election Comparative Statistics and Trends

1 Introduction

1.1 COVID-19 Pandemic Election

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, Elections Nova Scotia included public health measures in all aspects of planning for the 41st provincial general election to ensure the safety of voters, election staff, candidates, and their campaign teams. Several voting options were provided and promoted to build voters' confidence and to show they could vote safely either in-person or by mail using a write-in ballot. Elections Nova Scotia learned from the experiences of other Canadian election management bodies that conducted elections during the pandemic and incorporated lessons learned from these jurisdictions. What remained paramount was to ensure the delivery of a safe, fair, inclusive and balanced election.

1.2 Summary of Results

On July 17, 2021, at the request of Premier Iain Rankin, the Lieutenant Governor, the Honourable Arthur J. LeBlanc, ONS, QC, dissolved the Legislative Assembly. An Order in Council directed the Chief Electoral Officer, Richard Temporale, to issue the writs of election to all 55 electoral districts. The date chosen for the 41st provincial general election was Tuesday, August 17, 2021.

At the time of dissolution there were 51 electoral districts in Nova Scotia as defined in 2012. The 41st provincial general election was the first with the 55 electoral districts recommended by the 2019 Electoral Boundaries Commission.

In the August 17, 2021 provincial general election, 230 candidates stood for election: 55 each from the Nova Scotia Liberal Party (Liberal), the Progressive Conservative Association of Nova Scotia (PC Party), and the Nova Scotia New Democratic Party (NDP), 43 from the Green Party of Nova Scotia (Green Party), 16 from the Atlantica Party (Atlantica), and 6 independent candidates.

The return of the writs of election revealed that 31 candidates of the PC Party, 17 of the Liberal, 6 of the NDP, and 1 independent were elected as members to the House of Assembly.

The PC Party received 162,473 votes (38.44%) of the valid votes cast, while the Liberals received 155,026 (36.67%), the NDP 88,477 (20.93%), the Green Party 9,042 (2.14%), Atlantica 1,023 (0.24), and independents 4,960 (1.17%).

At the close of polls on election day, there were 767,618 voters registered to vote. In total, 422,712 (55.1%) of all registered voters voted compared to 53.4% in 2017.

A total of 1,971 polling stations were available in 808 different locations across the province; 30 of those were used for advance voting, 28 for community polls, 1,730 serviced election day voters, and 55 mobile polls served voters who lived in residential centres. More than 7,000 Nova Scotians were hired to deliver the 41st provincial general election.

To enhance access to early voting, voters could vote at any returning office, advance, or community poll offered in the province as opposed to being assigned to vote at one poll. Other early voting opportunities included an expanded write-in ballot and write-in ballot team processes, for voters who wanted to vote by mail or vote at home.

3.3 Returning Officers

Appointed by the Chief Electoral Officer, a provincial Returning Officer (RO) administers the electoral process in their electoral district.

Under the Elections Act, the implementation of new provincial electoral district boundaries leads to the automatic dissolution of all RO appointments. With every new electoral district boundary set, new RO appointments are required.

In anticipation of the boundaries change, Elections Nova Scotia completed merit-based competitions and selection processes in 2019. As COVID-19 prevented an in-person appointment ceremony, the Chief Electoral Officer appointed the new ROs by letter, the oath was declared virtually, and they began their on-boarding and training in April 2020.

In Table 5, each RO is listed with their electoral district indicated.

5 Register of Electors

Since the adoption of a Register of Electors in 2003, Elections Nova Scotia has worked to increase voter registration and enhance the reliability of the voter information. Since then, Elections Nova Scotia has maintained the Register of Electors through data received from several sources including the Registry of Motor Vehicles, Vital Statistics, the Nova Scotia Civic Address File, Elections Canada, municipal elections and field work done by Returning Officers and Elections Nova Scotia staff. Through digital and manual matching operations Elections Nova Scotia strives to update voter information to the extent possible depending on the accuracy and compatibility of the source of information.

5.1 Lists of Electors through the Election Period

At the start of the election, 755,222 registered voters were on the Provincial List of Electors. Revision and additions to the list of electors starts almost immediately, usually through targeted enumeration and direct contact through the returning office. Due to restrictions with the COVID-19 pandemic, Elections Nova Scotia did not conduct targeted enumeration during the 41st provincial general election.

A Preliminary List of Electors was generated for each electoral district by the end of Day 21, July 27th. The day after the close of nominations each nominated candidate and registered party was offered a copy of the list. The net increase in voters on the Preliminary List was approximately 147 across the province.

Revision continued through the election at returning offices, early voting opportunities, and election day polls. The Final List of Electors was generated after election day and included all voters that were added or revised on election day. For the 2021 provincial general election, there was a net of 12,396 voters added to the initial Provincial List compared to 5,843 added in 2017.

5.2 Revision Activities by Electoral District

Table 8 explores the number of voters that had their information revised or have been added to the List of Electors during the election period. It details some of the types of revisions including changes to the voter's name and date of birth, their residential civic address because of them moving into the electoral district or moving to a new residence within their district, updates to their mailing address, and voters removed from the list due to death, or voters who were previously on the Register who re-registered.

In total, 54,430 voters had information revised on their record. The electoral districts of Clare, Guysborough-Tracadie, and Richmond had the most revisions with 17%, 13% and 13% of their registered voters having their information updated, respectively.

* The number of revised voters indicates the number of voters that had one or more types of revision on their information.

 The number of new voters that were added to the List of Electors throughout the election period. In addition, these voters may also have been revised and included in the number per type of revision.

5.3 Population Coverage by Age

Table 9 details the distribution of the registered voters by age group and the percentage on the Register of Electors. During the 41st provincial general election in 2021, the Register of Electors included 92.91% of the estimated population of Nova Scotians who are eighteen years of age or older.

The Statistics Canada population estimate is based on July 2021 census data. Register coverage is defined as the percentage of eligible voters on the Register of Electors in August 2021 using the July 2021 population estimate.

The Statistics Canada population estimate includes ineligible voters, that is, non-citizens, and voters who have not lived in the province for the six months prior to the date of the writ. The Register of Electors will include a small number of duplicate records where two versions of the information are captured for a voter. For example, a voter may be duplicated if there is a difference in the names entered on a Nova Scotia driver's license and in filing taxes, where the voter is added to the Elections Canada list of electors that has not been identified by Elections Nova Scotia's register software. The Register will include people who have moved out of province or have died and not yet been identified to be removed from the list.

6.1 Size of Electoral Districts

Bill 187, House of Assembly Act (amended) was passed in October 2019 to implement the recommendations of the work of the Electoral Boundary Commission. The legislated new 55 electoral districts came into effect for the 41st provincial general election. Elections Nova Scotia prepared electoral district maps and polling divisions to implement these new boundaries.

Table 12 sorts the 55 electoral districts by geographic size from largest to smallest and indicates the number of polling divisions in each electoral district as well as the number of voters per square kilometer.

6.2 Number and Type of Voting Opportunity

For the 41st provincial general election in 2021, a total of 808 voting locations were used. These housed 1,971 polls that included continuous polls at the returning offices, write-in ballot polls, community polls, advance polls, mobile polls, and election day polls. Table 13 provides the number of polls by poll type, indicates the total number of voting locations overall, and compares this data with the 40th provincial general election held in 2017.

Table 13: Number of Polls by Poll Type

Poll Type	2017 General Election Number of Polls	2021 General Elections Number of Polls

Election Day Polls	1,818	1,730
Total	2,079	1,971
Total Voting Locations (includes RO, Election day, advance, community polls, and hospital poll location)	889	808

The main differences are because in 2021 Elections Nova Scotia made the following adjustments:

- Changed mobile polls from 10 voters to 40 voters and serviced those with less than 40 by write-in ballot team
- Increased the number of voters per poll on election day which reduced number of polls required
- Offered more days of voting at all community polls

6.3 Voting Opportunities by Electoral District

Table 14 details the voting location distribution by electoral district and provides the number of polling stations per electoral district. The total number of voting locations, 808, and the total number of polling stations, 1,971, align with the totals indicated previously in Table 13.

6.4 Voting Opportunities by Day

The focus for the 41st provincial general election was to offer as many voting opportunities as possible especially during the early voting period due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Although the total number of voting locations was lower for 2021 (808) than for the 2017 provincial general election (889) the number of voting opportunities by day increased. The increased availability was because community polls were open for a full two-week period in 2021. Advance polls were offered for a full week before election day the same as in 2017.

Table 15 illustrates the voting opportunities available during each day of the election calendar and compares the offerings from 2017 with those available in 2021.

6.5 Access to the Polls

Ensuring eligible voters have reasonable access to voting while containing costs are major factors in determining locations for early voting opportunities and election day voting locations. To increase access, voters in Nova Scotia can vote at any voting location in the province during the early voting period until the Saturday before election day. Vote anywhere was introduced in the 40th provincial general election in 2017 and was offered again in 2021. On election day, voters may vote at their assigned voting location or the returning office in their home electoral district.

Previously the drive time for a voter to access a voting location was a key factor that Elections Nova Scotia applied to evaluate access to the polls. The focus for voting access changed for the 41st provincial general election in 2021 due to safety concerns related to the COVID-19 pandemic. Safe access to in-person voting and greater promotion of the vote by mail option became the necessary factors to focus on for the delivery of this election. Elections Nova Scotia consulted Nova Scotia Public Health to determine the appropriate precautions for in-person voting and applied lessons learned and practices from other Canadian jurisdictions that held elections during the pandemic.

The most significant changes due to COVID-19 impacted in-person voting opportunities at the early voting opportunities which include returning office continuous polls, advance polls, community polls, and the election day polls. With public health advice, Elections Nova Scotia implemented added precautions to keep voters and election workers safe. ENS worked within government processes to acquire the necessary safety equipment to add physical barriers and sanitize surfaces during the in-person voting process.

The following precautions were taken for in-person voting:

- election workers were required to wear non-medical masks, and were provided face shields on request
- voters were asked to wear a mask to enter the voting location
- transparent table-top barriers were placed in voting locations and returning offices
- election workers disinfected surfaces following each voter interaction
- single use pencils were provided for each voter
- physical distancing requirements were marked at voting locations and returning offices
- increased early voting options were offered by having community polls operate for two weeks in more electoral districts

Based on the changes in voter preferences observed in other pandemic elections held in Canada, Elections Nova Scotia offered more early voting options across the province to reduce risks for in-person voting and to provide voters the best ability for physical distancing at voting locations.

Elections Nova Scotia also promoted the vote-by-mail option for voters to use a write-in ballot. In previous elections most voters chose the vote-by-mail option because they were out of the province during the election whether it was for work or for recreation. The COVID-19 pandemic made the vote-by-mail option more attractive to some voters and this is reflected in the statistics which show a greater volume of write-in ballots for the 41st provincial general election. To support the vote-by-mail process, Elections Nova Scotia developed an on-line method for voters to apply and receive their mail-in ballot package soon after the writ was issued.

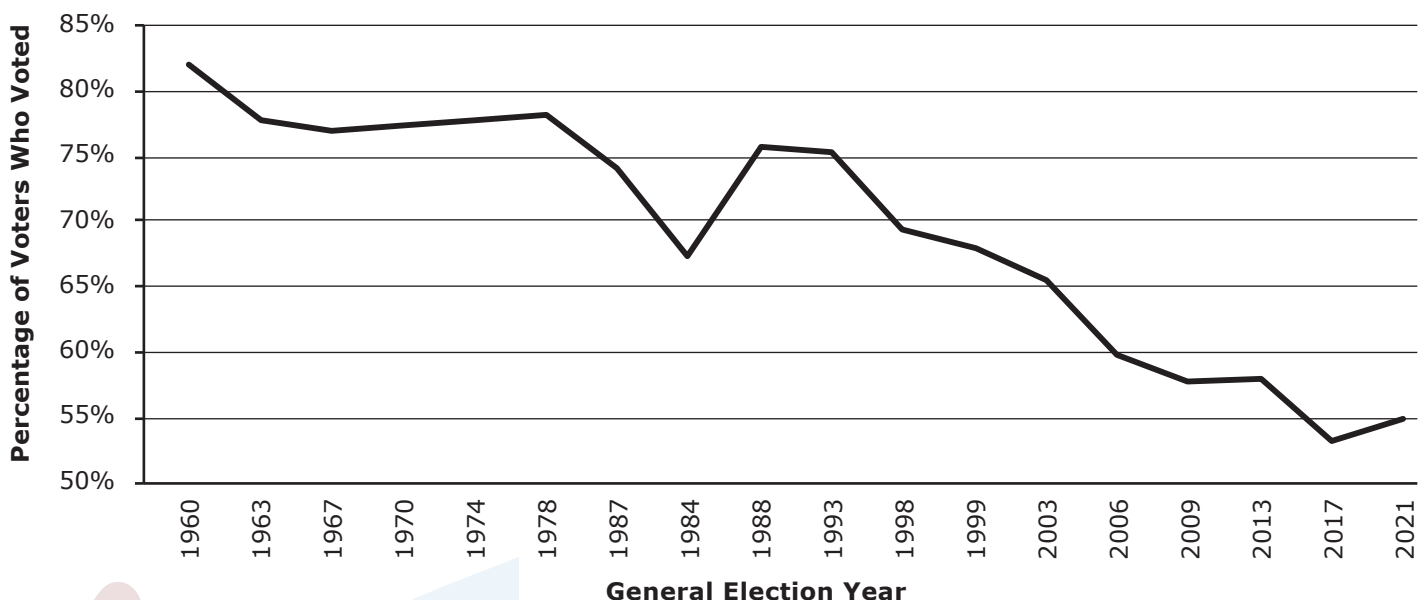

7 Voting Participation

For the 41st provincial general election, Nova Scotians had a variety of early voting opportunities which were promoted as safe voting options during the COVID-19 pandemic. Early voting opportunities included voting at a returning office, voting at a community or advance poll, voting by mail using a write-in ballot, or voting at a mobile poll. Election day voting opportunities included voting at a voter's assigned voting location, voting at the returning office in a voter's home electoral district, or voting using a write-in ballot facilitated by a write-in ballot team or by a voter's agent.

7.1 Historical Voter Turnout

Increased early voting opportunities in recent decades have added convenience for voters but has not resulted in higher percentages of voter turnout. Although the 41st provincial general election in 2021 had a slightly higher voter turnout (55.1%) than the 2017 election (53.4%) the turnout was still within a similar range. This pattern of decreased voter turnout is similar across Canada with an almost continual decline in voter turnout in many jurisdictions since the 1980s. Figure 4 provides a historical overview of voter turnout in Nova Scotia since 1960.

7.2 Distribution of Voters by Age Group

Slightly more voters cast a ballot in 2021 (422,712) than in 2017 (403,365) however the distribution of voters by age group was very similar. Table 16 shows that among those who voted, the highest percentages were in the 55-64 years and 65-74 years categories. This pattern reflects what occurred in 2017.

The highest level of participation for the 41st provincial general election in 2021 was in the 65-74 age group which was also seen in the 2017 election. The lowest participation remains in the 18-24 age group.

Table 18 provides a comparison between the provincial general elections held in 2017 and 2021 for voter participation by age group and voting opportunity. In all age groups the percentage of voters choosing to cast their ballot before election day or by write-in ballot increased in 2021 from what occurred in 2017. Overall, this shift caused a decrease in the percentage of voters choosing to cast their ballot on election day. Although there has been a trend towards greater early voting in recent elections it is likely that the COVID-19 pandemic was a factor in the changes seen in 2021.

7.3 Distribution of Voters by Day

Table 19 shows the daily votes cast by voting opportunity. These daily stats clearly show the uptake on early voting options including increased applications for write-in ballots, which may be attributed to the COVID-19 vote safely promotion. Figure 6 illustrates further the uptake of early voting by illustrating daily votes cast at early voting opportunities.

7.4 Historical Participation by Voting Opportunity

Table 20 and the following Figure 7 provide a historical trend, ranging from 1960 to 2021 of voting opportunities and their uptake by voters during provincial general elections.

The number of voters on the List of Electors has more than doubled since 1960, but the percentage of voters casting a ballot has declined in recent decades. Election day voting peaked in 1993 with 98.6% of voters casting their ballot on election day. Since then, election day voting has declined with each provincial general election through to 2021 where 56% of ballots were cast on election day. Since 1960 not only has the number of people choosing to vote before election day steadily increased but the number of early voting opportunities has also increased.

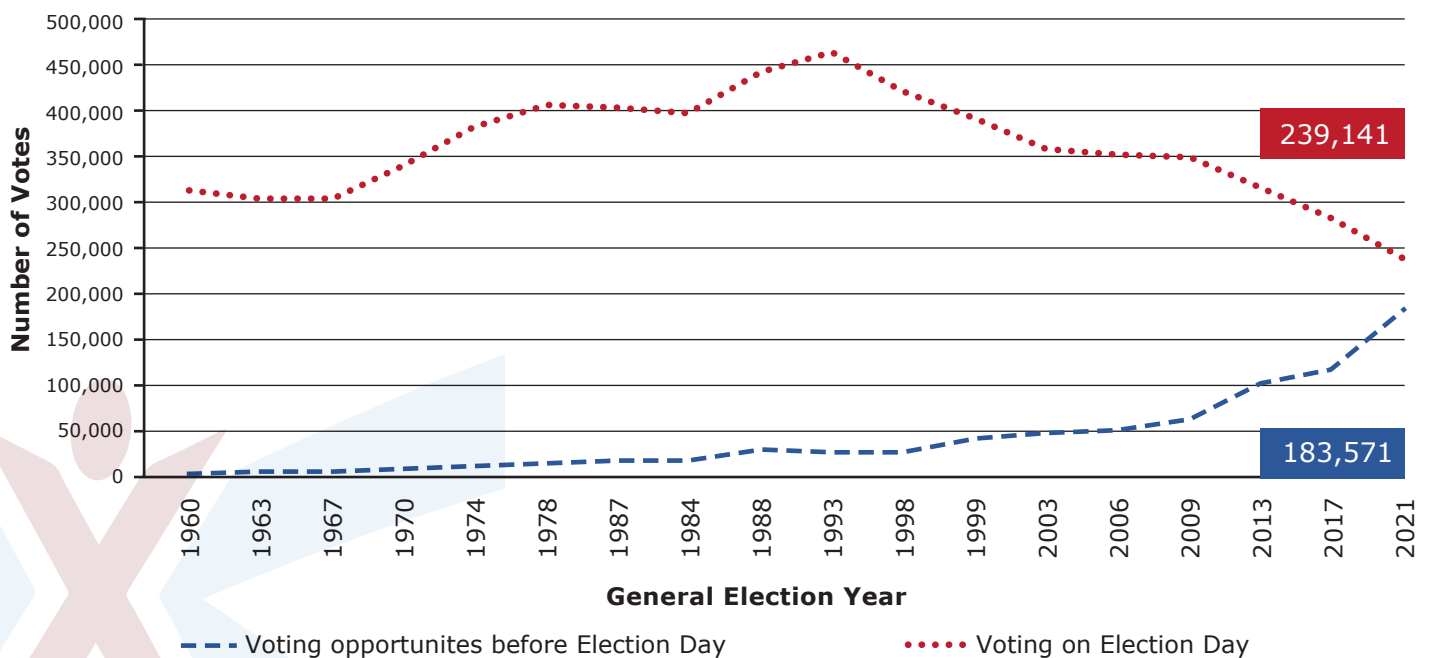

Table 20 provides a historical comparison of the percentage of votes cast by voting opportunity from 1960 – 2021.

Figure 7 provides a graphic trend of voter turnout before election day and on election day since 1960. While turnout has increased consistently for early voting opportunities the number of votes cast on election day has continued to decline in each provincial general election since 1998.

7.5 Out-of-District Participation

During the 41st provincial general election in 2021, voters could cast their ballot for the candidates for their local electoral district at any voting location in the province during the early voting period up to Saturday, August 14. In total 29,189 votes or 15.8% of voters, voted outside their home electoral district throughout Nova Scotia. Out-of-district votes were also cast via write-in ballot.

Table 21 provides the number of voters who voted during early voting and by write-in ballot by electoral district and illustrates the number of voters who voted out-of-district as well as the percentage of out-of-district voters.

Table 22 provides a further breakdown of the distribution of out-of-district votes by electoral district.

The electoral district of Clayton Park West had both the highest number of out-of-district voters (1,790) and the highest percentage of out-of-district votes (46.7%). The reason for Clayton Park West's high out-of-district numbers is likely because the neighbouring electoral district of Bedford South had no additional early voting opportunities.

7.6 Hospital and Residential Centre Write-in Ballot Polls

For efficiency in use of election workers, Elections Nova Scotia chose to reduce the number of mobile polls across the province, while maintaining service levels to those voters residing in such residences.

During the 40th provincial general election in 2017 mobile polls were held at any nursing home or residential centre with 10 or more voters. It was determined that was not an efficient use of election workers serving mobile polls with less than 40 voters. The Elections Act requires election workers to remain at a mobile poll for a minimum of two and a half hours. Mobile polls with less than 40 voters are often fully serviced within the first 30 minutes, leaving the election workers sitting idle for two hours before they can proceed to their next mobile poll.

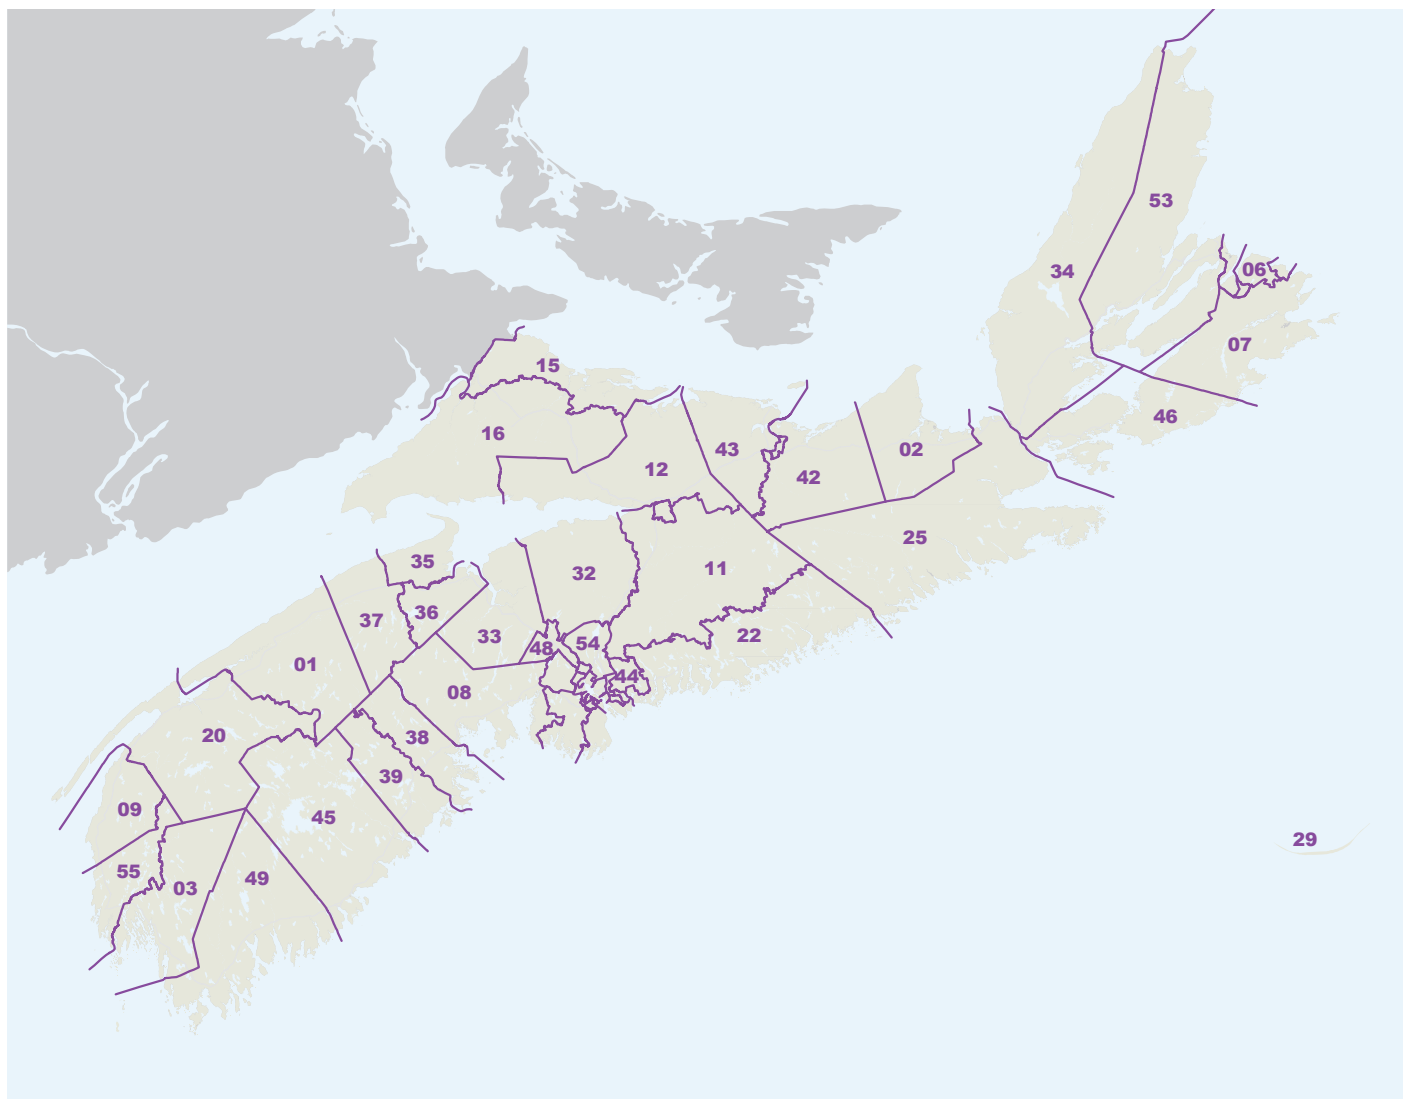

For the 41st provincial general election in 2021, nursing homes and residential centres with fewer than 40 voters were served by the write-in ballot teams. Table 23 provides an overview of the write-in ballot polls conducted at hospitals across the province including the number of in-district and out-of-district votes cast.
