How do I get on the Nova Scotia List of Electors?

Every Nova Scotian who is qualified to vote may choose whether or not to be included in the Register of Electors.

The Nova Scotia Register of Electors

Every Nova Scotian who is qualified to vote may choose whether or not to be included in the Register of Electors. While inclusion has certain benefits, such as being registered to vote and receiving a voter information card during an election that tells you where and when to vote, exclusion from the Register does not affect your right to vote.

If you choose not to be included in the Register, at the time of a provincial general election, or by-election, you will need to add your name to the list of electors by registering at the local Elections Nova Scotia returning office during the election, at an advance poll or at a poll on election day.

If your name is currently listed in the Register and you wish to update your address, contact Elections Nova Scotia. You will be asked personal information, such as your date of birth, in order for us to verify that you are an elector wishing to check or update your own information.

To be listed in the Nova Scotia Register of Electors

To apply to be added to the Register of Electors, you must be a Canadian citizen 18 years of age or over and have lived in Nova Scotia for at least six months. You can obtain an application form from the Elections Nova Scotia website or by calling Elections Nova Scotia.

Proof of Identity

The application to be added to the Register of Electors must be accompanied by a photocopy (not the original) of identification. If some of the information is on the back of the document, be sure to photocopy both sides.

A suitable proof of identity is a current document showing your name, civic address and signature (for example, a driver's license). If you do not have one document with this information, you can send photocopies of two current documents, one showing your name and civic address (such as a telephone bill) and one showing your name and signature (such as a Health Card). A summary of the identification options is available on the Elections Nova Scotia website or by calling Elections Nova Scotia.

Student's right to choose either home address or address while attending school as residence for List of Electors

The Elections Act states that if, on the date of the writ, you are registered and in attendance at an educational institution, reside in an electoral district or polling division other than that of your family home, and you qualify as an elector (including six months residency in Nova Scotia), you have the right to be included on the list of electors in one or the other of the polling divisions, but not both.

For example:

Jeff is a fourth year student from Truro. A provincial general election is called while Jeff is living in Halifax attending university. He can choose to register on the list of elector in either Truro or in the electoral district and polling division where he lives in Halifax, but not both.

Eileen is a first year student from Ottawa. A by-election is called for the electoral district in which she is living in Antigonish while attending university, a few months into the school year. She is not an eligible elector as she does not meet the six months provincial residency rule.
